

Meet your Coach.

David is known for his ability to ask the challenging question, create the conditions for insight, and do so without feeling like the sky is falling.

David Ogle

LEADERSHIP CONSULTANT

David is a performance coach and has been in the leadership development and coaching industry, working with entrepreneurs and large businesses alike, for over a decade. His coaching philosophy is founded on the premise that we all have immense amounts of untapped genius in our mind, and the practice of coaching is an effective means to distill that genius into simple and doable actions. He brings a social neuroscience approach to coaching for business leaders and professional athletes. He coaches through examining the relationship between the processes of one's mind, their actions, and their goals.

There are three components to his approach to performance: coaching, leadership, and neuroscience. By leveraging a deeper understanding of the brain and seeking a greater awareness around one's role as a leader and their impact, the highest potential for performance is achievable.
